NARRATIVE SUMMARY

1. General

During early May, the 9th Marines was engaged in coordinating relief of its elements from their positions along and North of Route 9 from the Cam Lo Bridge west to the fire support bases and OPs overlooking lines of communication to the Khe Sanh Plateau. Meanwhile, the 1st Battalion, 3d Marines, which became OPCON to the 9th Marines at the close of April was positioning its forces for subsequent employment in Operation VIRGINIA RIDGE. On 1 May, D/1/3 made significant contact on the southern slopes of Mutter's Ridge. The battalion was in heavy contact when it returned to OPCON of 3d Marines on 2 May.

While effecting relief of its battalions, the 9th Marines was finalizing its plans for Operation APACHE SNOW. The Operation was to employ two maneuver battalions and ultimately would span the period 10 through 31 May. The 9th Marines AO encompassed the lower Da Krong River Valley, and the Regiment's activities were to complement those of U. S. Army and ARVN forces engaged in combat operations in the upper A Shau Valley.

On 29 May, Operation CAMERON FALLS was begun north of the APACHE SNOW AO, overlapping the latter operation by two days. The Third Battalion returned to OPCON of the Regiment, after being the first unit introduced into the CAMERON FALLS AO.

The 9th Marines began the month under immediate command of the 3d Marine Division. On 2 May the 9th Marines chopped to Task Force Hotel. Later, prior to commencement of APACHE SNOW, OPCON of 3/9 was passed to Task Force Hotel and was to remain thus until 29 May. Upon return to VCB on 28 May, 1/9 chopped to Task Force Hotel, under whose OPCON it remained through the end of the month.

Until relieved in early May, the 9th Marines had been tasked to provide security for fixed installations in the Division AO, including positions from the Cam Lo Bridge west along Route 9 to Hill 950 and extending north to C-2, A-4, and Dong Ha Mountain. Platoon and company-sized operations were being conducted in the Mai Loc TAOR in connection with the above requirements. The Regiment's assigned mission for Operation APACHE SNOW was to ".... block enemy escape into Laos along the South Vietnam extension of 9221, and conduct reconnaissance-in-force operations .... to destroy the enemy and his caches." The mission for Operation CAMERON FALLS was .... "conduct operations in the upper Da Krong and Western Ba Long Valleys to locate and destroy the enemy forces deployed therein."

Intelligence gained during the month confirmed earlier Bru reports that NVA forces had, in the main, moved out of the former DEWEY CANYON AO south into Laos or north into the Upper Da Krong. Most enemy contacts were above the 10 east-west grid line and averaged six enemy per contact. C/1/9 discovered the only cache of significance.

Of operational significance was the temporary loss of B/2/12 as an effective supporting unit. A fire on FSB Erskine spread beyond control into the 105mm ammunition storage area, with the resulting damage to the battery dictating its extraction. It is noteworthy that there was little discernible interruption in combat operations as a result of the incident. Combat engineers and EOD [illegible] cleared the field of debris and repaired firing positions and ammunition bunkers. Immediately upon completion of these tasks, Battery "B", 2/12 was lifted into Erskine and resumed direct support artillery operations. Two FSBs, Erskine and Razor, were employed in support of the manuever battalions. In view of the Regiment's isolated location, it had been necessary to first "leap frog" FSBs into the area of operations. This was greatly facilitated through the contact relief of elements of 3d Marines occupying positions just north of the area of operations at the elongated of 3d Marines' Operation MAINE CRAG. Under cover of supporting artillery at FSB Gaucho, D/1/9 moved overland to secure FSB Razor to afford a covered landing for the units that were to later occupy the FSB. Razor was to become the site of 9th Marines CP. It was at this location that plans were developed, prepared, and disseminated for Operation CAMERON FALLS.

3. Artillery

a. General. Artillery support throughout the month was provided by 2d Bn 12th Marines. Due to the great distance to the Apache Snow objective area, very few general support fires were utilized. During Operation Apache Snow, the value of close and continuous liaison was again proven. 2d Bn 12th Marines assigned a Liaison Officer to the 1st ARVN Regimental CP located at FSB Bradley. This team also provided command representation to 3d Bde, 101st Abn Division. Several missions were fired by 2/12, and the ARVN in support of one another during the operation, with ease and excellent coverage.

b. Missions Fired

(1) Observed - 536; Unobserved - 712

(2) Number of Rounds Fired: 105 - 22,353 4.2" - 2,061
155 - 4,476

c. Significant Surveillance. 11 KIA, 33 Bunkers destroyed, 1 truck, 1 mortar tube.

4. Air Support

a. Fixed Wing. Fixed wing support was satisfactory during the period covered. All close air support missions were controlled by aerial observers. One "Spooky" and six Flareship missions were flown. Although three daylight TQ and 24 night TQ missions were flown expending 57 tons of ordnance, only 16% of the TQ missions requested were hit. Tactical air observation support totaled 198 missions for 346.4 hours.

(2) Bunkers destroyed - 90; Damaged - 13

(3) Positions destroyed - 3

(4) Secondary fires and explosions - 19

(5) Miscellaneous damaged and destroyed structures and 40 meters of trench line.

6. Helicopter Support. Considering the limited assets at the close of Operation APACHE SNOW, the withdrawal from FSBs Erskine and Ryder was completed far more rapidly than anticipated. During May, a total of 2,711 personnel were helilifted and 935,376 pounds of cargo were transported. Medevac helicopters flew 113 missions, evacuating 236 personnel. Other missions flown included C&C and gunship escort. A total of 322 helicopters were used by the Regiment and supporting elements to lift 8 company size or larger units and perform 10 battery lifts.

5. Logistic Support

a. Significant logistical matters during May were in the areas of supply and medical affairs. Resupply coordinated by the Regiment follows:

By Class:

Class	Number of Pounds
I	630,871
II	43,684
III	62,284
IV	31,475
V	167,062

b. In the area of medical affairs, an inspection of battalion rear areas was conducted on 30 May. No significant discrepancies were cited. Lt C. T. Golden assumed the duties of Regimental Surgeon on 20 May, replacing Lt R. [illegible]

During May the RAS treated 276 patients at Vandegrift Combat Base and 100 at FSB Razor. 12 patients - NBCs - were referred to other medical facilities. 96 immunizations were administered during the month, while 1,150 chloroquine-primaquine tablets and 7,500 dapsone tablets were dispensed as malaria prophylaxis.

6. Communications

During May, the Communication Platoon continued to provide communication support for the Regimental Headquarters at VCB and the rear at Quang Tri. Commencing 8 May a major portion of the Communication Platoon moved to FSB Razor in support of Operation Apache Snow, with a two man relay team placed on Hill 819. On 9 May an MRC-62 was placed on FSB Razor and provided the main link of communication between FSB Razor and VCB. On 17 May, a telephone terminal, TCC-2, arrived at FSB Razor. A communication survey, designed by Sylvania Corporation and implemented by III MAF, was conducted within the Regiment. This survey required detailed information on all phases of communications. On 5 May, a two man relay team was sent to Hill 819 for the purpose of relaying messages should problems develop due to terrain masking during Operation APACHE SNOW. On 7 May, the advance party moved to FSB Razor; communications was established, and, at 1500 8 May, net control was passed to the forward CP. No communication problems were experienced with the FM family of radio equipment. With the commencement of Operation APACHE SNOW, at FSB Razor, a 5 man wire team installed the forward CP telephone system with integrated radio relay back to VCB. On 16 May, an enemy rocket damaged the 12 pair cable running to Signal Hill at VCB. The damage was repaired in approximately 1 hour, restoring communication to Signal Hill.

The Message Center personnel continued a courier service from 9th Marines rear at Quang Tri to the forward position at VCB. Traffic received at VCB Message Center, from both the rear and Task Force Hotel was promptly processed and delivered to S-1 for further distribution. On 8 May, daily courier service was initiated to deliver to 9th Marines CP on FSB Razor.

A secure teletype circuit between 9th Marines at VCB and 3dMarDiv COC was maintained.

Total number of messages sent by 9th Marines for May was 142, and the number of messages received was 2232.

(5) Instructions to Forward Observers. An entire battery will be fired in the adjustment phase in all cases unless otherwise requested, or unless the FDC Watch Officer considers it unsafe. For contact targets too close to friendliesfor initial attack by artillery, block the most likely escape route with a heavy volume of fire and then adjust the fire-for-effect through the enemy position to a safe distance from friendly positions

(6) Aerial Observers. May be available from the 12th Marines through 2/12 battalion FDC. Direct all AOs to conduct artillery missions on the COF net of the infantry battalion in whose AO the target is located

5. Supporting Forces

a. Artillery and Fire Support Coordination

(1) Supporting Units. Artillery support for Operation APACHE SNOW was provided by the 2d Battalion, 12th Marines (Rein), which was in direct support of the 9th Marine Regiment. Due to range considerations, no general support fires were provided during the operation. Reinforcing fires were provided throughout the operation, in the eastern portion of the AO, by artillery of the 1st ARVN Regiment emplaced at FSBs TURNAGE and BRADLEY.

(2) Fire Support Coordination

(a) Fire Support Coordination Centers were maintained at each infantry battalion, and clearance of fires was accomplished at 9th Marines FSCC.

(b) Routine Sav-A-Plane information was not passed to Task Force Hotel due to the remote location of the AO. An exception was that fires impacting into the 5KM, Laotion Buffer Zone required that Sav-A-Plane information be passed to TFH. Counter battery fires into this zone became quite regular.

(c) Clearance of fires along common boundaries might have created lengthy delays had not liaison been established with adjacent forces. A 12th Marine Regiment liaison team was sent to FSB BRADLEY, (ARVN Forces), and the 3d Brigade, 101st Airborne provided liaison to both the ARVN and the 9th Marines. The secure communication capability of the Army liaison teams was of particular value. Clearance of fires with Reconnaissance and Special Forces units was facilitated by the presence of their representatives in the 9th Marines COC.

b. Air Support

(1) Fixed Wing Support

(a) Close air support during Operation APACHE SNOW adequately supported the ground forces scheme of maneuver. TPQ support was marginally satisfactory. Only 16% of the TPQ missions requested were actually run.

(b) All close air support missions were controlled by an AO/TAC(A) rather than a FAC because of the AO's better visibility of the target area and superior communications.

(c) Other fixed wing support included TA-4, C-117 "Spooky", C-117 radio relay, C-130 flareship, and psy war missions.

(d) A total of 66 CAS missions were flown with the following BDA reported:

Bunkers	=	52 Destroyed, 13 Damaged
Structures	=	9 Destroyed
Trench line	=	40 Meters Destroyed
Trucks	=	4 Destroyed, 3 Damaged
Bulldozers	=	2 Destroyed
Forklift	=	1 Destroyed

6 Secondary explosions
41 KBAir

(2) Helicopter Support

(a) Helicopter support was satisfactory throughout. Medevacs were extremely responsive, often under the most adverse conditions. The evacuation of FSBs ERSKINE and RAZOR was accomplished far more rapidly than anticipated even though helo assets were limited.

(b) Helicopter support data:

2316 troops lifted
8 Company-sized lifts
83 Medevac missions/179 troops evacuated
935,376 pounds of cargo lifted 295 helicopters employed

c. Company B, 3d Reconnaissance Battalion. Company B, in direct support, provided reconnaissance inserts responsive to the requirements of the Regiment. The reconnaissance company commander, was located at the Regimental Command Post and functioned as a special staff officer. The reconnaissance effort was especially significant in view of the large AO assigned, and the limited maneuver forces available to cover it. The most significant recon effort, on a continuing basis, was the recon coverage of Co Ka Leuye on the southwestern flank of the Regimental AO overlooking LAOS, and in particular many potential artillery sites.

d. Company C, 3d Engineer Battalion. Company C provided close combat support throughout the operation with a platoon assigned in direct support of each infantry battalion. A primary task of the engineers was redevelopement of FSBs RAZOR and ERSKINE prior to the introduction of the artillery batteries. With the fire on FSB ERSKINE on the second day of the operation, and resultant loss of Battery D as an effective supporting unit, engineer assets were again required to clear the FSB of debris and repair the gun positions.

e. Company A, 3d SP Battalion. Company A provided Helicopter Support Teams (HSTs) down to the company and battery level. Terminal guidance was provided for incoming helicopters. External and internal loads were received and sent out, and assistance was provided for the construction of LZs. Shore Party personnel also provided logistical support at the Vandegrift Combat Base, and Quang Tri Logistical Support Area Landing Zones.

6. Intelligence

a. General. At the outset of APACHE SNOW, information relative to enemy strength was vague. Reports from Bru and Hoi Chanhs indicated that several regimental sized forces were located in the northern portions of Base Area 611 and south of the Laotian Salient. It was believed that elements of the 6th and 9th (infantry) Regiments and their 675th (artillery) Regiment, and various support units, were among those in the area. Several days before the operation began, a 200-300 man force was sighted in the YD 1910 grid. This reinforced earlier reports that Routes 922 and 9221 were being used to travel between the A Shau Valley and Base Area 101.

b. Engagements. Despite the earlier indicators, the Regiment found no evidence of sizeable enemy forces in the AO. The 9th Marines experienced only 28 contacts (exeluding reconnaissance team engagements). Twenty four of the contacts involved 2/9 elements above the 10 east-west grid line. An average of 6 enemy were engaged in these contacts. The majority of encounters were meeting engagements.

c. Documents. On 12 May, H/2/9 captured documents revealing the identity of enemy units which had opposed the 9th Marines on Operation DEWEY CANYON. Several battalions of the NVA 320B Division, designated the 2072 Infiltration Group, had been committed to reinforce the 814th Battalion of the 7th Front. Other documents identified elements of the K-10 Battalion as being in the 9th Marines AO just prior to the beginning of APACHE SNOW.

d. Psyops. The psyops "Early Word" broadcast system was used once. As a result, 17 Bru were located. These Bru guided Marines to several small enemy caches. The Bru reported that the enemy had been ordered to avoid contact. It was also indicated that the NVA/VC had made little use of the Upper Da Krong Valley since Operation DEWEY CANYON.

7. Mission. 9th Marines(-)(Rein), on 3 May 69, commences staging in the upper Da Krong Valley and prepares to deploy at L-Hour on D-Day to the southern Da Krong Valley in order to block enemy escape into Laos along the South Vietnam extension of Route 9221, and conduct RIF operations in zone to destroy the enemy and his caches.

8. Concept of Operation

a. Commencing on 3 May 69, 9th Marines(-)(Rein) stages two battalions in the upper Da Krong Valley north of the 16 E-W grid line. One battalion secures two active Fire Support Bases held by 3/3, and moves elements overland to secure FSB RAZOR for the subsequent helilift thereto by a second battalion.

b. At L-Hour on D-Day, one battalion conducts a heliborne assault to secure FSB ERSKINE and block the South Vietnam extension of Route 9221 to prevent enemy escape into Laos from the southern Da Krong Valley. Subsequently, with available forces, it conducts RIF operations in the S and SW sectors of the Regimental AO. The second battalion conducts RIF operations in the central and north sectors of the Regimental AO while maintaining security of FSB RAZOR.

c. Fire support is provided continuously from two mutually supporting FSBs to be relocated within the Regimental AO as required to provide maximum coverage to manouver elements.

9. Execution. The CG, 3d Marine Division Concept of Operations for APACHE SNOW was released at 250122Z April 69. Initial staff orientation was accomplished on the same date. Following these presentations, the Commanding Officer, 9th Marines provided his planning guidance and outlined courses of action to be considered. Staff estimates were presented on 26 April and the staff received the commander's decision immediately thereafter. Based on the commander's decision and concept of operations, as set forth in paragraph 8, above, planning commenced on 27 April. Operation Order 4-69 was completed and distributed at 011800H May.

11. Administrative Matters. The Administrative Plan for the operation was considered adequate.

a. Supply

(1) The VCB Logistic Support Area (LSA) was designated the primary resupply point for all classes of supply. In addition, the administrative plan further provided for utilization of the Quang Tri LSA as an alternate/emergency resupply point. Weather throughout the operation was favorable and presented no significant problems for helicopter resupply. Helicopter availability in support of resupply operations throughout Operation APACHE SNOW was adequate. The following statistical information underscores this statement:

(a) Total CH-46 frags - 261

(b) Total CH-46 frags completed - 194

(c) CH-46 completion percentage - 74%

(d) Total CH-53 frags - 121

(e) Total CH-53 frags completed - 91

(f) CH-53 completion percentage - 75%

The information shown above reflects a summary of resupply operations for the Regimental Headquarters and the two infantry battalions that participated in the operation. The Direct Support Artillery Battalion (2d Bn, 12th Marines) submitted 408 heavy lift requests during the Operation and 113 lifts were completed for a completion percentage of 25%. Although the completion percentage is far below that of the infantry battalions, helicopter support for the artillery was considered adequate. Had contact been heavier, and ammunition expenditures greater, the limited resupply success might have represented a major problem.

(2) Resupply during Operation APACHE SNOW was accomplished solely by helicopter. Recognizing the limited helicopter assets to adequately support sustained operations, the commitments of other forces within the Task Force Hotel and Third Mar Div AO, and an unusually long helicopter resupply route, a forward LSA was established on FSB RAZOR during the early stages of the operation. The LSA was stocked with essential items, i.e. water, rations, batteries and selected items of Class V. The purpose of the LSA was twofold: (1) provide a capability within the AO to satisfy urgent resupply requirements, (2) ensure maximum utilization of available helicopter assets. Use of the forward LSA was made repeatedly throughout the operation and, on one occasion, three rifle companies were resupplied with rations and water within a time frame of 45 minutes. Considering the extended distance that these units were operating from the principal resupply point at VCB, and the fact that only two CH-46 helicopters were available, it is highly probable that all requirements for resupply would not have been completed if this capability had not existed. The use of a forward LSA has proven highly successful when units are operating in areas far removed from supporting LSAs.

b. Maintenance. No significant maintenance problems were encountered.

c. Treatment of Casualties. Casualties were initially treated by Battalion Surgeons/Hospital Corpsman in the field and subsequently evacuated to Company "C", 3d Medical Bn at VCB or direct to 3d Medical Bn at Quang Tri. Emergency medevacs and most seriously wounded personnel were normally evacuated direct to the 3d Medical Bn. The CO, 3d Medical Bn directed evacuation of all casualties between facilities of the 3d Medical Bn, other in-country medical facilities, and to hospital ship(s). A Regimental Aid Station was established at FSB RAZOR and provided competent and highly efficient medical treatment.

d. Communications

(1) General. During Operation APACHE SNOW the Communication Platoon provided Communication support at FSB RAZOR, Vandegrift Combat Base, Quang Tri, Hill 819, and Signal Hill. In addition, one radio operator was sent to FSB BRADLEY as liaison with the ARVN and one operator with a cipher unit was sent to FSB ERSKINE to provide direct communications with the FSB Coordinator. At FSB RAZOR VHF/FM radio communications were utilized without major problems. A telephone system was installed at FSB RAZOR with an integrated radio relay shot (AN/MRC-62) to Vandegrift Combat Base. Two common users and two hot lines were provided by this equipment. A telephone terminal, AN/VCC-2, was lifted to FSB RAZOR.

(2) Radio. Radio communications was maintained with the organic battalions and Task Force Hotel. Reliable communications was provided on all nets both plain and cipher. A relay team was placed on Hill 819 in the event communication problems developed between the Battalions, Regiment and Vandegrift Combat Base. Direct communications with First Battalion Ninth Marines, while moving along Route 9221, was not possible due to terrain masking. This problem was solved by using a relay on FSB ERSKINE.

(3) Wire/Radio Relay. During Operation APACHE SNOW the wire section provided telephone service at FSB RAZOR consisting of two SB-22's providing 24 circuits. A MRC-62 shot from FSB RAZOR to Signal Hill at VCB provided trunking and hot line service to higher Headquarters. The MRC-62 was very reliable when not plagued by generator problems. On 17 May telephone terminal AN/VCC-2 arrived at FSB RAZOR. The distance and terrain were within the capability of this equipment, however, the lack of experienced operators and technicians capable of coping with equipment failures prevented it from becoming operationally reliable.

(5) Message Center. The Message Center provided daily courier service for the Ninth Marines from VCB to FSB RAZOR, and from Quang Tri to VCB thus providing a smooth flow of message traffic between widely dispersed CPs.

12. Special Equipment and Techniques

a. Extensive use of powder cannisters as supplementary water containers was made throughout the operation. Cannisters are not subject to leakage and may be discarded, eliminating the need for extraction and retrograde to supporting LSAs.

b. As a supplement to the normal supply of rations and water, extensive use was made of canned fruit juices. Normally, 4 cases (12 cans per case) were included in each company load and was also issued to occupants of FSBs. The extensive use made of these juices, particularly by those units operating in the field, contributed significantly to the reduction of heat casualties and dehydration.

c. To provide immediate replacement clothing, large amounts of jungle utilities were stockpiled on FSB RAZOR for issue to line companies. This procedure proved highly effective and significantly reduced the delay normally experienced in transporting replacement clothing from rear areas to the field.

13. Commander's Analysis.

UNCLASSIFIED

a. General. Operation APACHE SNOW verified the validity of current principles and concepts employed in the 3d Marine Division for operations at the regimental, battalion and company level. Significantly, it proved that the Marine rifle company is capable of moving over the rugged, jungle covered mountains in search of the enemy under the canopy of artillery fire from strategically located Fire Support Bases; is capable of being controlled and administered by its parent battalion headquarters located at an FSB; and can be sustained logistically for extensive periods of operations through the regimental support system. Since the enemy was not present in strength, the requirement for continued reconnaissance in force operations by the rifle platoon/company provided opportunity for evaluation of tactics and leadership at that level. The basic requirement for security during movement to contact, deception, rapid exploitation of contact by fire and movement, as well as use of organic supporting arms, are essentials that gain victory over the enemy. Continuous effort must be directed toward supply discipline, malaria control, sanitation and personal hygiene to reduce non-effective casualties and maintain field strengths. Success in this area is prime evidence of leadership excellence at the small unit level.

b. Command and Control. Operation APACHE SNOW was initiated as a multi-regiment/brigade operation to include the 3d Brigade, 101st Airmobile Division, 1st ARVN Regiment and the 9th Marines, 3d Marine Division. Joint planning was not directed or provided for. During execution the ARVN force operated in coordination and cooperation with the U. S. Army brigade, while the U. S. Marine Corps regiment carried out complementary operations in its assigned, contiguous AO. Although liaison between artillery units was established and maintained, there existed no common or coordinating headquarters to direct operations of the three participating operations.

c. Summary Analysis. The 9th Marines successfully carried out the assigned mission of (1) Providing a mutually supporting FSB (ERSKINE) to the 1st ARVN Regiment (FSB TURNAGE) during the conduct of operations; (2) Denying the enemy reinforcing entrant or egress from the A Shau Valley along Route 9221 (Da Krong Road); (3) Intersecting Route 9221 (Da Krong Road) by a series of four cuts and blocks to deny the enemy immediate future use of the road; (4) Conducting reconnaissance in force operations throughout the extensive AO assigned to deny this area to the enemy for operations or for use in locating strategic supplies therein; (5) Conducting continuous interdiction of Route 922 by fire.

14. Recommendations

a. That the current principles for establishment and use of Fire Support Bases during operations be continued. That the concepts and principles for small unit tactics be stressed as valid for all Marine Corps operations in RVN to assure victory over the enemy.

b. That in future joint operations of this nature, the participating ground units be under the operational control of
